Mockup Feedback

Hi Cici,

I love how this mockup looks- I feel like you've really gotten the technological and exploratory look I talked about in the original brief while still staying readable. The headers and images convey the theme of the Media Lab well and are easy to follow. Here are just a couple things I noticed that you might want to tweak for the next version:

- When the navigation links are highlighted, it is a bit too low contrast because it is a white on light grey. You could try changing the color of the background or change the link color (could be colored to mimic the images).
- I love the way the images and body text are laid out in the desktop version, but I'm not totally sure how it is going to work on mobile screens since the text and images probably won't be able to be side by side.
- I think the homepage is striking and has a nice character- just make sure all the text can fit over the fold and isn't overlapped by the image

This is a really good draft and I can't wait to see how the html version will look.
